The Honorable Mallory E. Horne
 President, Florida Senate
 The Capitol

April 3, 1973

Dear Mr. President:

It is my privilege to submit to you today my recommendation for a comprehensive legislative package which will affect the working life of virtually every Floridian. Our State is currently experiencing a period of unparalleled economic growth. Our citizens now enjoy a quality of living which is the envy of many other states in the Union. That quality of living was created by the working men and women of Florida. For this reason, each of us in government is obligated to them to do his utmost to insure, insofar as possible, a decent and safe environment in which to work, a climate of freedom in which to choose not only occupation but also employer and a minimum guarantee of economic security from the contingent risk of work-related injury, sickness and disability and of unemployment. It is in this spirit that I am submitting for your consideration for enactment in the 1973 Session, the following legislation:

I. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION, OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH

To over a quarter-million Floridians last year, the effort to increase productivity and concomitant personal prosperity was not achieved without severe and substantial personal sacrifice. More than 336,000 Florida workers were injured on the job in 1972, of which 341 died and 95,183 were partially or totally disabled. It is therefore paramount that we move decisively this year to address on two fronts this all-important human and social problem. First, we must expand workmen's compensation coverage and revise the mode and quantum of benefits. Secondly, we must, through enactment of appropriate enabling legislation, initiate Florida's participation in the implementation of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, so that we can begin to effectively prevent the occurrence of work-related deaths, injuries and sickness.

In July of last year, the President's National Commission on State Workmen's Compensation Laws concluded an exhaustive, year-long study. The Commission included representatives of business, labor, insurance carriers, the medical profession, education, state workmen's compensation agencies and the general public. The recommendations of the Commission were directed toward the achievement of the five basic objectives of a modern workmen's compensation program: (1) Broad coverage of employees and of work-related injuries and diseases; (2) Substantial protection against interruption of income; (3) Provision of sufficient medical care and rehabilitation services; (4) Encouragement of safety; (5) An effective system for delivery of the benefits and services. I strongly urge the Legislature to accept the challenge of the Commission's report and to enact the following revisions necessary in meeting each of these objectives, so that at the conclusion of this Session, Florida can proudly proclaim that it is first in the Nation in providing adequate compensation for its working men and women for job-related deaths, injuries and sickness:

(1) I recommend adoption of a "formula" method of computing maximum compensation which will set the ceiling in 1973-74 at 66% per cent of the statewide average weekly wage. This system is more flexible than the present one which sets an arbitrary, flat dollar limit, and it will insure that compensation benefits keep pace with fluctuations in wages and prices. As indicated in the chart below, the present system works a hardship on those who earn more than $110 weekly, since that is the wage at which the maximum compensation level of $66 is reached (60% of $110 = $66). There are, of course, a great number of Floridians who earn more than $110 per week (in fact, the average wage for last year, 1972, was $135 per week); and the prospect of living on only $66 per week while they are injured and cannot work is pretty grim. I think our working men and women deserve a better deal than that.

PRESENT SYSTEM

Weekly Wage		Benefit Rate+		Actual Benefits
$ 90	X	60%	(=$ 54)	$54
$110	X	60%	(=$ 66)	$66 (Max. = $66)
$135	X	60%	(=$ 81)	$66 "
$150	X	60%	(=$ 90)	$66 "
$200	X	60%	(=$120)	$66 "

PROPOSED SYSTEM

Weekly Wage		Benefit Rate+		Actual Benefits (assuming statewide average weekly wage of $135)*
$ 90	X	60%	(=$ 54)	$54
$110	X	60%	(=$ 66)	$66
$135	X	60%	(=$ 81)	$81
$150	X	60%	(=$ 90)	$90 (Max. = 66% of statewide av. weekly wage)*
$200	X	60%	(=$120)	$90

*The statewide average weekly wage for 1972 was $135.

+Present law providing that actual benefits be 60% of a worker's weekly wage will remain unchanged.

(2) Present law limits funeral expenses to $500. I don't know whether any of you have had the misfortune of making funeral arrangements for a loved one; but if you have, you know that $500 doesn't go very far. The least we can do for working Floridians is to insure that they get a decent burial in the event of a job-related death. There were only 351 work-related fatalities last year; but I can assure you that the families of those workers were struck hard. I recommend increasing the ceiling to provide for actual funeral expenses up to $1,000.

(3) The formula method which I have suggested should also be applied to the computation of maximum benefit payments to families of deceased workers. This is also in accordance with the report of the National Commission. Another change which the Commission deemed essential is that benefits paid on account of surviving children be continued until the children are twenty-five, if enrolled full time in school, and thereafter if they are disabled or otherwise dependent. I think we should do everything in our power to see to it that the surviving children of our deceased working men and women are not deprived of any opportunity to acquire an adequate education.

(4) The waiting period for benefits should be reduced from seven to three days. The present waiting period places a substantial hardship on disabled low-income employees.

(5) I recommend repeal of the section providing for reduction of pension benefits by the amount of workmen's compensation benefits among governmental employees who are eligible for both. A pension is not a governmental gratuity; it is an earned benefit, paid for in part by the worker. There is no rational basis for reducing pension benefits. As a practical matter, the provision has the effect of discriminating against older governmental employees.

(6) I recommend that workmen's compensation coverage be extended this year to all agricultural workers and to employers with one or more employees who have previously been exempt by virtue of the number of their employees. Farm work is tough—and it is hazardous. Many of you have vowed publicly, as I have, to seek improvement this year of working and living conditions for these neglected citizens. A good place to start is to insure adequate medical treatment and minimum economic survival when farm workers are injured on the job. Likewise, the continued exemption of employees of our smallest businesses from coverage places the risk of economic hardship from work-related injury or sickness on those who can least afford it. These employees are the backbone of our work force. There is no rational basis for continuing to exclude them from coverage.

(7) An injured employee ought to be able to choose his own physician rather than to be required to accept medical care from a physician selected by the employer or carrier.

(8) The term "injury" should be broadened to include damage to or loss of dentures, eyeglass, prosthetic devices and artificial limbs while on the job.

(9) State and national experience has shown that the economic incentives incorporated in the workmen's compensation program have failed to reduce the number of work-related injuries and diseases. For this reason, Congress, in enacting the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, exercised its complete and plenary power over matters affecting interstate commerce and empowered the United States Labor Department to adopt and enforce broad and comprehensive safety and health standards which will apply to virtually all industries and occupations among the fifty states. Recognizing, however, that state government is responsive to the needs of its citizens and may be better able to secure the necessary cooperation between management and labor, Congress wisely provided in the Act for voluntary participation, on a matching fund basis, by the states in the development, administration and enforcement of occupational safety and health standards.

Florida should, through adoption of appropriate enabling legislation, accept this opportunity to participate in a jointly-funded occupational safety and health plan. Under a state-administered plan, standards will be much the same as those which would exist under a federally-administered plan. This is required by Congress. The key difference is that administration by the State of Florida should insure a more reasonable and practical approach to the administration and enforcement of the standards and will enable employers and employees affected by the standards to utilize state administrative and judicial forums and procedures for settlement of disputes and grievances. I believe that history has made it quite clear that the State of Florida can more efficiently, more economically and more justly exercise the responsibility of government than can Washington. I therefore call upon you to enact an Occupational Safety and Health Act which will enable Florida to assume full responsibility for the development, administration and enforcement of occupational safety and health standards.

II. UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Unemployment insurance was begun over three decades ago as a means of insuring unemployed working men and women freedom from economic panic while seeking another job. The unemployment insurance system is not a "dole" or a federally-financed giveaway. It is job insurance subscribed to by employers for the benefit of their employees, should they ever become unemployed. Through the years, however, we have discovered that unemployment insurance can serve as an effective means of countering downturns in the business cycle. As a federally conceived program now largely administered by the states, it has proved to be a well conceived piece of social legislation which has emphasized, rather than detracted from, our traditional dual, federal-state governmental partnership.

I am proud to report that last year Florida's unemployment rate averaged only three and one-half per cent. I say this advisedly, since this figure is of little comfort to the one hundred thousand plus workers who were unemployed last year, many of whom were not covered by unemployment insurance; and it is somewhat misleading to such minority groups as Blacks and younger Floridians, whose rate is customarily at least double the statewide average. Nevertheless, we did approach what the theoretical economists refer to as "relative full employment," and, as an index of economic productivity, we should be proud—all of us who work for a living. Ironical as it may seem, the best time to strengthen our employment insurance system is during a period of relative full employment.

The proposals which I am today recommending, some of which I recommended last year, are truly long overdue. Eighteen years ago, President Eisenhower urged the various states to adopt a maximum high enough to permit at least 80 per cent of insured workers to receive a benefit of one-half their wages if unemployed. This recommendation has been echoed by every President since—Democratic as well as Republican. Indeed there is some indication that the recommendation has now become a mandate—state action or federal intervention. I have already stated that I believe that the State Government of Florida can provide for the needs of its citizens more effectively, efficiently and justly than can the government in Washington. I therefore strongly urge that the following proposals be enacted.

(1) I recommend that the maximum benefit allowance be 66% per cent of the statewide average weekly wage. The President has recommended adoption of this formula. Under my recommendation, the actual benefit rate (50 per cent of an individual's weekly wage) and the maximum period of benefits (26 weeks) will remain unchanged.

As indicated in the chart below, the present maximum dollar amount, raised by the Legislature to $64 per week last year, penalizes the average and upper-middle income worker. A person who earns over $128 per week receives something less than 50 per cent of his weekly wage. The statewide average weekly wage last year was about $135. The adoption of the formula would therefore result in a ceiling of about $90 per week, based on last year's figures. It would provide a flexible formula which would automatically keep pace with fluctuations in wages and prices.

Of course the Legislature would retain the power and the responsibility to make any changes in the law it deemed appropriate, including changing the percentage or even reverting to the absolute dollar limit approach if it so desired.

The people hurt by the present system are not the poorest workers but rather those with education and skills who have attained good jobs. For example, this year several thousand highly skilled space industry workers will be laid off due to cutbacks by the federal government. These people will need more than $64 per week with which to buy groceries and pay their mortgages.

The person at this income level has demonstrated an ability and a will to work. He will not stay unemployed and live on 50 per cent of his weekly wage if he can possibly help it. Our present system does not permit the person making between $128 and $180 to receive even the full 50 per cent benefit rate. Surely, Florida cannot afford a system which places highly motivated working men and women in an impossible situation and drives them out of work and on to welfare roles.

PRESENT SYSTEM

Weekly Wage		Benefit Rate+		Actual Benefits
$ 60	X	50%	(= $ 30)	$30
$ 90	X	50%	(= $ 45)	$45
$128	X	50%	(= $ 64)	$64 (Max. = $64)
$180	X	50%	(= $ 90)	$64 "
$200	X	50%	(= $100)	$64 "

PROPOSED SYSTEM

Weekly Wage		Benefit Rate+		Actual Benefits*
$ 60	X	50%	(= $ 30)	$30
$ 90	X	50%	(= $ 45)	$45
$128	X	50%	(= $ 64)	$64
$180	X	50%	(= $ 90)	$90 (Max. = 66%* of statewide av. weekly wage)*
$200	X	50%	(= $100)	$90 "

*The statewide average weekly wage for 1972 was $135.

+Present law providing that actual benefits be 50% of a worker's weekly wage will remain unchanged.

(2) I ask also that you again consider eliminating the seven-day waiting period. The President has recommended this change and a number of states have adopted it. Present law requires a worker to be unemployed for one week during which he is not paid benefits and to wait a second week before being able to claim a compensable week. It then takes a third week before he can receive a check. The waiting week therefore penalizes those who can least afford it—low and middle-income workers who do not have adequate cash resources on which to live while they are out of work. It is estimated that elimination of the waiting week will result in only a six per cent increase in benefit payments, spread across approximately 51,000 claimants.

(3) Present law also provides that, in order to be eligible, a person must be unemployed for good cause attributable to the employer. From time-to-time, persons find themselves unemployed for good cause but not a cause attributable to the employer. Of course, the employer should not be penalized in this situation. Therefore, I recommend removal of the requirement of unemployment having to be attributable to the employer, provided that the experience rating of the individual employer is not adversely affected.

III. COLLECTIVE BARGAINING, PUBLIC EMPLOYEES

The Constitution of Florida guarantees the right of public employees to join together and bargain collectively. If there were ever any doubt as to the existence of this Constitutional right, the Florida Supreme Court eliminated that doubt in November, 1972, when it unanimously reaffirmed the necessity for legislative implementation of collective bargaining guidelines for public employees and stated that, in the absence of legislative action, the Court would itself promulgate the necessary guidelines.

It has been my position for the past two years to encourage and to assist the Legislature in every way possible to enact collective bargaining legislation which would both protect the rights of public employees to bargain and insure against unlawful strikes by public employees. I again strongly urge the Legislature to adopt collective bargaining guidelines during the forthcoming session, so that the courts will not be forced to take action in another area of our lives. I will support and sign into law a bill which:

(1) protects the rights of all public employees, both state and local, to engage in organizational activities and collective bargaining;

(2) creates a disinterested commission to supervise and administer a public employee relations act; and provides criteria for determining units of employees appropriate for bargaining which will insure that Florida will avoid the experience of having small, fractionalized and unworkable bargaining units;

(3) provides for procedures to resolve impasses in bargaining and provides civil penalties for unfair practices;

(4) defines and prohibits strikes and provides for effective penalties for illegal work stoppages;

(5) does not include binding arbitration for bargaining impasse.

I am confident that the Legislature will carry out its responsibilities in the 1973 session to implement this Constitutional guarantee.

IV. RIGHT TO WORK

Over the years I have supported the constitutional right-to-work provision in Florida and I continue to support this provision. In the past, I have recommended additional legislation to implement this constitutional guarantee. A recent opinion of the Attorney General indicates that additional legislation does not appear to be necessary. In this regard, I ask the Legislature to assure itself that this constitutional right is adequately implemented both substantively and procedurally.

V. MEDIATION AND CONCILIATION SERVICE

The State Mediation and Conciliation Services has, in recent years, proved to be an effective, worthwhile agency upon which both business and labor could rely for aid in reaching amicable, peaceful settlement of labor disputes. In 1972, for example, the Service was instrumental in assisting a peaceful settlement of a dispute involving some seven hundred employees of the St. Joe Paper Company in Port St. Joe. This one strike involved far more money than the entire annual operating budget of the Service, and it posed a substantial threat to the economy of the area. I feel that the Mediation and Conciliation Service can continue to play a vital role in the sensitive area of labor-management relations, and I therefore urge that funding of the Service be resumed.

VI. EFFECTIVE AND MEANINGFUL ALLOCATION OF HUMAN RESOURCES—THE STATE MANPOWER COUNCIL

No greater problem faces our Country and our State than that of providing meaningful employment for all of our people. It is undisputed that work is essential in providing man with a sense of self-worth, in reducing political and social alienation and in maintaining a healthy economy. It is equally true, however, that work which is unchallenging, offers little chance of advancement, or deprives the worker of any sense of pride in the work-product contributes to political and social alienation, increases psychological disorder and, in the long run, has a negative effect upon the economy. The challenge is clear: We must develop an economy which can provide work for all those people who are able to work. At the same time we must creatively re-evaluate the qualitative aspect of work to insure that ours does not become a system in which people are relegated, as objects, to boring, unfulfilling labor.

This challenge requires a concerted effort on the part of state government to prepare its citizens for work, to insure that work is available once a person is prepared and to encourage the development of fulfilling work environments.

The State cannot perform this role effectively unless it articulates a state manpower policy and establishes the administrative machinery to carry out this policy. In the past, the Cooperative Area Manpower Planning System (CAMPS) located in the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Human Resources, has, in a limited way, attempted to address this role. This agency has operated, however, under the exclusive stimulation and direction of the United States Department of Labor and has confined its role to that of planning for the distribution of federal money allocated for categorically defined federal manpower programs. The CAMPS agency has not been administratively situated in a position which would enable it to influence the implementation of manpower policy. Therefore, I have directed an administrative reorganization and upgrading of the State Manpower Council.

As you know, federal money for categorical manpower programs may be replaced by special revenue sharing money for manpower purposes. This means that states and municipalities will have the opportunity of and responsibility for determining for themselves what their manpower needs are and how they wish to address these needs. Further, the manpower problem is far more complex than simply deciding how to allocate a limited number of federal dollars, whether they be in the form of categorical grants or special revenue sharing. Therefore, in order to provide the state with the manpower policy and implementation strength it needs, the State Manpower Council must serve a purpose of increasing importance.

CONCLUSION

In line with President Nixon's recommendations, I have addressed the need for amendments which will substantially upgrade, qualitatively and quantitatively, the protection afforded Florida's employees under the unemployment and workmen's compensation programs. I have recommended adoption of safety and health legislation which will insure comprehensive and cost-efficient protection of Florida's employees from occupational injuries and accidents and should ultimately contribute to lower cost of administration of the workmen's compensation program, increased productivity and lower costs to the consumer for goods and services produced in this State. I have suggested that Florida should elect state rather than federal administration of the Occupational Safety and Health Program.

The Legislature should not abdicate its constitutional responsibilities to the courts in the important matter of collective bargaining for public employees. Therefore, I have once again urged that you enact a bill which will assure the rights of public employees to organize and to bargain collectively, and I have suggested guidelines which I feel should be included in such a bill. Additionally, I have addressed the need for continued improvement of the State Manpower Council to insure the ability of our government to respond meaningfully to the need for rational, efficient and humanistic allocation of our manpower resources.

Finally, I call upon each of you to accept the challenge of insuring that continued technological progress and economic growth does not come at the expense of the dignity and fulfillment which man has always gained from his work. Tremendous strides have been taken since the thirties to improve the wages, hours and working conditions of the average worker. Yet, little has been done to enhance the quality of a man's job or to help reestablish the pride and dignity in skill and craftsmanship which once characterized the American labor force. I call upon you to work with me in this and in future sessions to address the quality of working life and to help recreate a sense of cooperation and mutual respect among the labor and management community. Together we can meet the human and social challenges of the coming era of unparalleled productivity and economic prosperity.

Sincerely,
REUBIN O'D. ASKEW
Governor
